

National

CLIPPER SHIP PREPARES FOR HOP

Dog Man

BISHOP WHO HEADS THE BATting ORDER OF THE
SENSATIONAL RED SOX—
EVEN AFTER 11 BIG LEAGUE
SEASONS HE'S STILL THE BEST
LEADOFF MAN IN THE LEAGUE

1990

the NRA to extend hours.

1990

100

100

49

OFFICERS OF RAILWAY ON TOUR HERE

Continued from Page 1.
has week to make a "secret" tour.

They arrived unannounced Wednesday and were quartered at two private cars sidetracked at the Richmond terminal of the railway. Just as quietly as they arrived, they later returned to the hotel.

Contacted by newspapers, the chief of the company at San Francisco declared that it was merely an inspection trip by Peter D. Egan, the four railway officials. He spent an entire day surveying the line and walked the whole length of a strip from Richmond to the land.

As a result of these mysterious activities, confidence was expressed that some big deal is now pending and an announcement will be made in the very near future.

The lands held by the company are ideal manufacturing sites and due to the improvements in railroads and harbor channels, added to means of transporting raw materials and finished goods have been provided.

J. R. Hayden, assistant traffic manager of the Santa Fe, with offices in San Francisco declared that the company purchased the lands as an investment for resale to industrial concerns.

SIX NAVY WAR BIRDS ESCAPE IN CRACK-UPS

ABOARD U. S. S. PENNSYLVANIA, June 1.—(AP)—Six Navy fliers escaped injury today in a spectacular crash of three seaplanes in a choppy sea as the fleet headed toward San Diego to end its mid-Pacific war maneuvers.

The crack-up ended a one-hour flight of 16 planes attached to battleships of the fleet. It occurred shortly after noon.

All the occupants of the three seaplanes were fished out of the water unhurt by lifeboats hurriedly put overboard from nearby battleships. The planes also were recovered.

The crashes all occurred inside of a minute as the planes descended about the battleships. The Navy fliers, who were flying over the sea, were still close astern the planes as they crashed into the choppy seas with water-splashed splashes, their huge tails sticking out of the water.

An instant later the fliers were seen scrambling onto the up-turned craft. One pilot swam out from a submerged cockpit. All saved themselves by their own agility in clinging to whatever supports they could lay their hands on until the rescue boats have alongside.

One destroyer raced from destroyer division for several miles on the chance its aid might be needed. It turned about when the recoveries were completed.

EARL HEDQUIST and GLENN WARDLELL of Lindborg, Kansas, at visitors at the home of Edward Bagston, 272 Second street.

Army Bomber Crashes; 4 Killed

FOUR MEN were killed when an Army bombing plane from Mather Field, Sacramento, crashed and burned in Sequoia National Park. Flying in formation with 13 other bombers at an altitude of 14,000 feet, the plane suddenly zoomed and fell into the forest. Two Army men and two newsreel men, passengers on the flight were burned to death.

EL CERRITO NEWS

LADIES PISTOL CLUB ENTERS ALAMEDA MEET

The Ladies Pistol Club that has been under the instruction of H. P. Burpee will enter the lists at the meet at Alameda today.

The members of the team in today's meet will be Mrs. Herb of Sacramento, Mrs. Hill of Berkeley, Mrs. Airbuckle of Richmond and Mrs. Gildwell and Mrs. Burpee of El Cerrito. Several others will enter the contest as individuals this morning.

WHIST SERIES BEGINS AT THE PUP CAFE

Mrs. Florence Evans held the first of her series of "one whist" at her cafe on San Pablo avenue this week.

Winners of the day's prizes were Mrs. E. Timmons of Richmond, Mrs. J. Bartlett, Mrs. Calrice McAuley, Mrs. Cornwell and Mrs. Blake McNeil.

The holder of the highest number of points for the series will be awarded the grand prize at the final party.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB TO MEET TOMORROW

The Berkeley Park Improvement Association will hold a meeting at Berkeley Park Community hall tomorrow evening.

FAIRMONT P. T. A. TO INSTALL TUESDAY

Fairmont P. T. A. will hold installation of officers at Tuesday's meeting. Mrs. K. A. Roberts of Richmond acting as installation officer.

Refreshments will be served and a large attendance is anticipated. A public is invited.

TOWNSENDITE WILL HOLD RALLY FRIDAY

The El Cerrito Townsend Club will hold a rally at the Community church Friday evening of this week. There will be a speaker or to explain the Townsend plan and the progress it has made. The public is invited.

FIRE DRILL TO BE HELD THIS MORNING

The El Cerrito Fire Department will hold its regular meeting and drill in the fire hall this morning at 10 o'clock.

HI-Y GIRLS PLAN FOR FINAL MEETING

The Hi-Y Girls will hold their final meeting of the season at the Community M. E. church on June 20. Plans are being made for a partying celebration for that evening.

SMITHS LEAVE FOR COLORADO VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith of 683 Richmond street left yesterday for a vacation in Denver and other Rocky Mountain points.

TONY VARGAS TO GO TO SEASHORE

Tony Vargas of Tony's Cafe will leave this week for Santa Cruz for a short vacation.

SHIRLEY BAKER IS HONORED WITH PARTY

Mrs. Elmer Baker of Liberty street, who recently underwent a major operation in an Oakland hospital is at home again and spent Saturday celebrating her birthday in a way that is dear to the hearts of little girls, with a party for them.

nice birthday cake and all the candles and everything.

EL CERRITOS SEE NOTED PLAY AT S. F.

Mrs. and Mrs. Miller Harrell, Mrs. Jessie McDonald and Mr. Hazel Tenner were among the Berkeley Park residents who crossed to San Francisco to see Henry Hall in Tobacco Road at the Curran theater last week.

JOINS HUSBAND AT LAKE FOR SUMMER

Mrs. E. J. Swanson of Stockton street, is leaving today for Lake Tahoe where she will join her husband for the summer. Her son Harold will accompany her, but will return to El Cerrito the last of the week.

ITEMS OF SOCIAL AND GENERAL INTEREST

Clifford Knight, of 808 Sea View avenue, left recently for Lake Tahoe, where he will be employed all summer. His family will join him there at the close of the school year.

Little Fatsy Curran, who has been ill for some days is able to be out again.

Orville Hendricks of Shelvin Drive has been in San Francisco the past two weeks, and will remain there for some time longer.

Vaughn F. Wright of Los Angeles left yesterday for his home after spending a few days here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Wright of Fairmont avenue.

Andrew Baxter left Thursday for Sweden to visit relatives. He will be away for about three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hillenass spent Thursday in East Oakland as the guest of Mrs. Martha Baum, an aunt of Mr. Hillenass.

Mrs. Ethel Maynard and daughter Lucille, have taken the cottage at 408 Berkeley Park boulevard, and will make their home in Berkeley Park. The Maynards are from Oakland.

Mrs. Ann Southern who recently recovered from a bad attack of flu is confined to her home with the same ailment.

Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Seaman are on a trip to Lake county today.

Al Fairbanks will spend tomorrow in San Leandro on business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rust will leave tomorrow for Caliente and Fedder's Springs. Mrs. Rust will return on Tuesday, but her husband will spend a vacation of some weeks at the springs.

Last Rites Held For Crash Victim

Funeral services were held in San Francisco yesterday for the late Miss Victoria Conrado, 37, San Francisco school teacher, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident here Wednesday night.

Wilson & Kratzer had charge of the services. Entombment was in a San Francisco cemetery.

READ THE LATEST WORLD NEWS IN THE RECORD-HERALD

UNTIE.....! THOSE NERVOUS KNOTS!

Nervous tension is the arch enemy of Health and Happiness. American women, because of their many interests, are particularly susceptible to nerves. Much of this trouble comes from improper budgeting of time and lack of knowledge concerning short cuts in the kitchen. All this can be eliminated.

MAKE YOURS A HAPPY KITCHEN

This paper is bringing to you a noted economist who combines a wealth of knowledge and practical experience in problems concerning the home. She will show you many new and novel ways of preparing appetizing and inexpensive dishes... Also many ways of conserving your energy so that yours, too, may be a HAPPY KITCHEN. You can't afford to miss the

RECORD-HERALD FOUR DAY COOKING SCHOOL

CONDUCTED BY

Miss Hester Heath

Who Will Give Her Four Famous Talks on Cookery and Home-making Starting

TUESDAY AT 2.30 P. M.

Richmond Clubhouse

Tuesday
June 4

Wednesday
June 5

Thursday
June 6

Friday
June 7

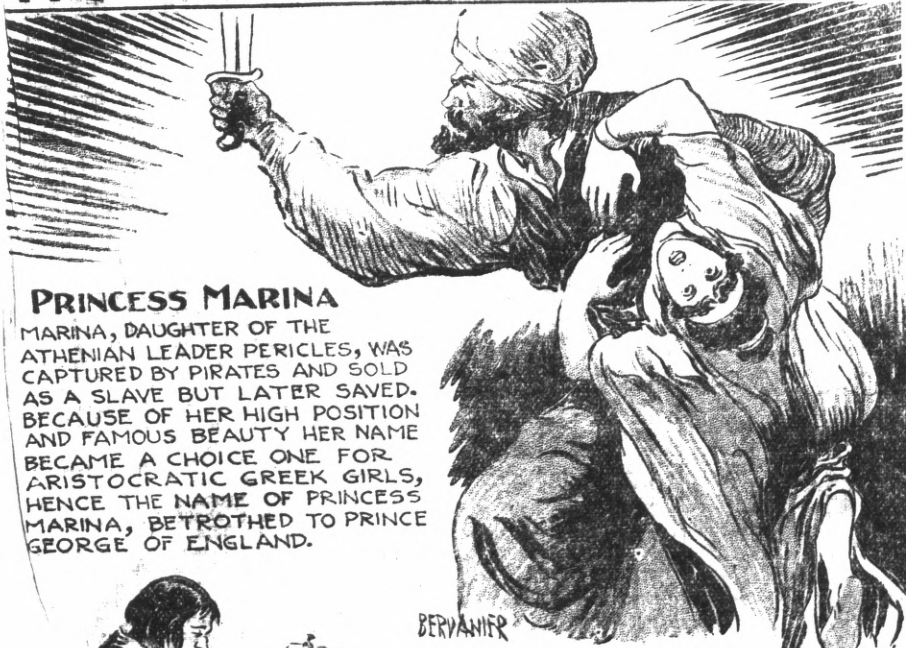

FREE ADMISSION

AWARDED DAILY GIFTS

HOW IT BEGAN

By Paul Berdanier

PRINCESS MARINA

MARINA, DAUGHTER OF THE ATHENIAN LEADER PERICLES, WAS CAPTURED BY PIRATES AND SOLD AS A SLAVE BUT LATER SAVED. BECAUSE OF HER HIGH POSITION AND FAMOUS BEAUTY HER NAME BECAME A CHOICE ONE FOR ARISTOCRATIC GREEK GIRLS, HENCE THE NAME OF PRINCESS MARINA, BETROTHED TO PRINCE GEORGE OF ENGLAND.

BERDANIER

MINUTES OF THE MEETING

THIS WORD FOR A SECRETARY'S MEMORANDA CAME FROM THE EARLY PRACTICE OF WRITING THESE NOTES IN VERY "MINUTE" (SMALL) CHARACTER, WHICH WERE LATER TRANSCRIBED IN LARGER CHARACTERS FOR PERMANENT REFERENCE.

CONFERENCE ON NRA IS ASKED BY OFFICIALS

100

(To be continued)

OUR OWN DAILY MAGAZINE—PAGE

YOUR HEALTH

When and What to Eat Is Important Factor in Business Man's Efficiency

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

WE TALKED yesterday of food poisoning that was caused by some sort of bacterial infection or from decomposition of the food itself. I intimated then that it is not always the choice or condition of food that hurts us. The trouble may be found entirely within ourselves.

A good share of the world's business today is done during eating hours. The main idea seems to be that it affords a certain degree of good feeling to offer a fellow business man a free meal, and hence it is good for business.

Let us mean good business, but it doesn't always mean it. Let us consider some of the factors involved in this "eating for business" sake.

The meal as a rule, is entirely too rich and too abundant. In order to appear the good fellow you want to be, you insist on ordering more than anyone of you needs. If we are to judge by the appearance of the usual business man, he is much more likely to look overfed than underfed. It is growing more and more common now to preface the meal with a cocktail. We used to think that a bowl of hot clam broth was good enough, but that hasn't enough kick to it these days. If one cocktail were enough, it might be a good thing to give the stomach a bit of stimulant to set it going.

Repeating the Reminder

But the drinks are repeated and the digestive tract is given several flippings to remind it of its job. When beer is the drink chosen, usually two or three mugs are consumed. This is entirely too much liquid, as it dilutes the digestive juices too much.

Then there is the inevitable cigarette or cigar. Almost between bites, the smoke pours through the nostrils and is inhaled as the lunch room atmosphere gets thicker. Meanwhile the meal is being stowed away—meat usually, a vegetable or two and dessert.

Eating places specialize in making food attractive and palatable, being interested entirely in the amount they can persuade you to eat and not at all in the penalty you may have to pay for it.

Now, introduce into this scene of good fellowship, a sudden demand that the brain should take up and investigate and decide an important business problem. What happens? For one thing the brain needs the blood which has just been called to the stomach to meet a particular demand there.

Neglects the Stomach

Since the brain is the boss, it is quite likely the stomach will have to do with somewhat less than it needs. Also, the nerve centers are appealed to in order that the brain may seem alert and equal to its task. Hence, the digestive apparatus may have to get along without an adequate operating force.

Certain other elements often enter the situation. Business conferences may breed a number of factors such as irritation, disappointment, worry, fear; all of them having an established influence of detriment upon the digestion.

To make eating really profitable, the surroundings should be pleasant, the company congenial, and the food selected not for its price or popularity or stimulation, but for its immediate adaptability to your particular needs.

You should not need life insurance figures to tell you when you are overeating, and overworking, or what are the very large chances of your becoming diabetic or apoplectic, of having heart failure, or high blood pressure.

Whatever your business, what you want most is "a sound mind in a sound body." The first requisite is a prime regard for what and when and how you eat.

Short Cuts

There is a "willow" flower cutter, a special pair of scissors that trims the stems cleanly and makes it possible for flowers to bloom for days longer. It comes in chromium plate or nickel.

If you wish to save time in creaming shortening and butter for a cake, mash them together with a potato masher.

Chairs and rockers will not leave marks on carpets or floors if the feet are waxed.

Guide to Charm

Good Posture Tends to Slim Down Figure

By JACQUELINE HUNT

DIETING and exercise are not the only ways of controlling your figure, although we'll grant that they are pretty essential when you are overweight. Learn to carry yourself well—in other words cultivate good posture—and you will look inches taller and much more shapely and slender, even though you do have a few extra pounds to worry you.

One of the first steps to good posture is to learn to breathe correctly and to control the diaphragm. You shouldn't breathe with your stomach, but with your lungs. Stand up, with your chest high, your shoulders back and down, arms at your side and your feet together with the weight on the broadest part. Keep the back as straight and as flat as you can and then stretch it upward as tall as possible.

Do this stretching movement many times during the day, when you are sitting or standing. When you are sitting, be sure that at the hips are firmly placed well back on the chair, spine straight and the shoulders erect. If you have to sit at a typewriter for many hours a day, you will find that you are much less tired at the end of the day if you sit this way.

With the body held in the proper position, breathing should be a natural, easy process. Just think of your lungs as you inhale slowly. Feel the chest fill with air; feel it press against the ribs, low down at first and then mounting until it actually forces the tops of your shoulders backward. Exhale just as slowly, counting rhythmically as you inhale and exhale.

When good posture and deep breathing become unconscious and easy you will find that many of the little pads of unneeded fat around your shoulders, neck and waistline have disappeared. Walking helps good posture and good posture gives you a graceful walk. Keep your spine, shoulders and chest in their proper position, then think of the hips. Swing the entire foot and leg from the hip when you take a step, and keep your steps long, smooth and gliding. Your body seems to take on a new buoyancy and you will be proud of your figure. Practice walking every chance you get.

Here is an exercise that will strengthen your back. Lie flat on your back on the floor, hunch at the sides. Then, using the muscles of the waist and hips, raise up to a sitting position. Next lie down just as slowly. Ten times.

A time-table of beauty events for brides who are in the leaflet, "Beauty For Spring Brides." Just send a stamped self-addressed envelope if you would like a copy.

Removing Paint Stains Fresh paint stains may be removed with turpentine or benzine. A solution of equal parts of turpentine and alcohol is also good. Or turpentine mixed with a little ammonia. Wash off with soap suds or benzine.

A Sandwich Filling Some suggestions for sandwich filling: Anchovy paste mixed with chopped egg, and moistened for spreading with mayonnaise to which a little lemon juice has been added. Grated American cheese mixed with chili sauce. Cottage cheese with salted almonds, pineapple and mayonnaise.

Profiles For Today

"Margery" Wins One More Victory

By TALBOT LAKE

BEFORE Conan Doyle died, a few years ago, he went very heavily into a study of psychic phenomena. He became convinced there could be communication between this and the next world, and he attempted to prove his belief by giving a series of lectures on the subject. I remember in those lectures seeing pictures of ectoplasm and medium-developed heads of persons already dead.

Doyle said the best medium was Mrs. Lerol G. Crandon, ("Margery") wife of a Boston surgeon, and she set great store by her. Now she has won another victory. She has materialized the face of her dead brother, and herein lies a tale. The editor of the paper published by the American Society for Psychical Research became skeptical about brother Walter and said, "The trustees of the society, after thinking it over, decided the editor was wrong, and so they fired him, thus vindicating Mrs. Crandon once more."

The Boston clairvoyant has puzzled scientists more than any other psychic. She has undergone any number of strict tests, but it always seems impossible to come to a decision. One of the mystifying things about Mrs. Crandon is that she, a shrewd mystic, being in truth a conservative New England matron. Her husband was a member of the faculty of the Harvard Medical School, and she was kept busy with church work, social duties and her young son. Dr. Crandon became interested in psychic matters and aroused his wife's interest. They studied it together and later attended seances. It was then she discovered her psychic powers and began developing them.

In 1925 she tried for the Scientific American prize offered to anyone who could produce supernatural phenomena under scientifically controlled conditions. Houdini, arch foe of the mediums, set the stage, but nothing conclusive ever came of it. Mrs. Crandon said she liked and respected Houdini and wished him well, but the fact was that he would soon die. He did.

The medium's specialties are ectoplasm and spirit fingerprints. Scientific men are still unconvinced about her, but they have never found any fraud.

Since the brain is the boss, it is quite likely the stomach will have to do with somewhat less than it needs. Also, the nerve centers are appealed to in order that the brain may seem alert and equal to its task. Hence, the digestive apparatus may have to get along without an adequate operating force.

Certain other elements often enter the situation. Business conferences may breed a number of factors such as irritation, disappointment, worry, fear; all of them having an established influence of detriment upon the digestion.

To make eating really profitable, the surroundings should be pleasant, the company congenial, and the food selected not for its price or popularity or stimulation, but for its immediate adaptability to your particular needs.

You should not need life insurance figures to tell you when you are overeating, and overworking, or what are the very large chances of your becoming diabetic or apoplectic, of having heart failure, or high blood pressure.

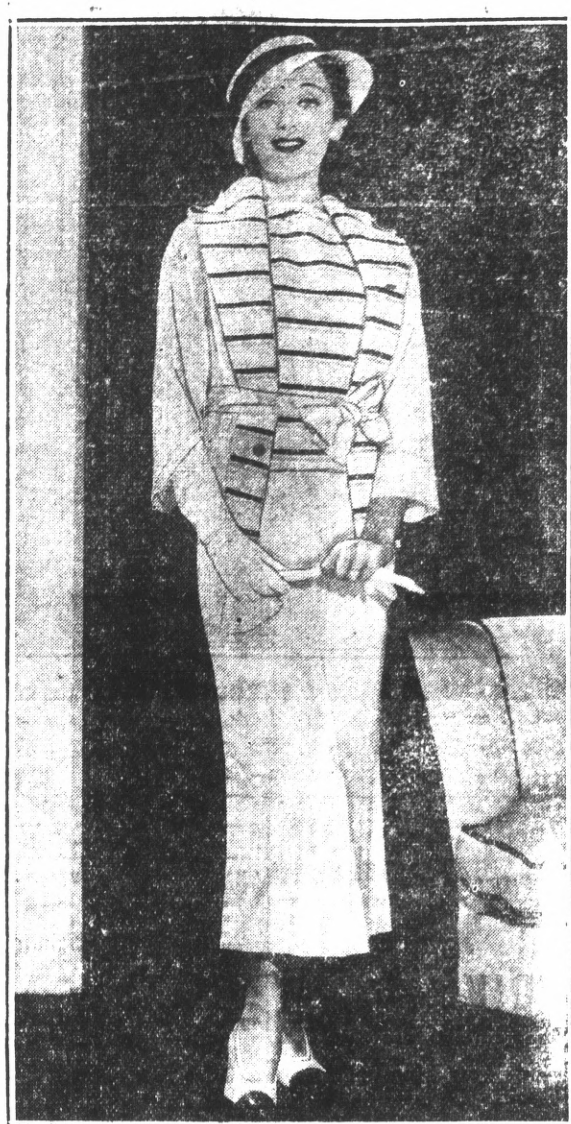

Whatever your business, what you want most is "a sound mind in a sound body." The first requisite is a prime regard for what and when and how you eat.

There is a "willow" flower cutter, a special pair of scissors that trims the stems cleanly and makes it possible for flowers to bloom for days longer. It comes in chromium plate or nickel.

If you wish to save time in creaming shortening and butter for a cake, mash them together with a potato masher.

Chairs and rockers will not leave marks on carpets or floors if the feet are waxed.

A Dressy Sports Suit

Ann Dorak, of the films, wears this dressy sports ensemble. Pale dusty pink crepe forms the tailored skirt and the belted sweater jacket. Strikingly in contrast to the black striped grosgrain silk which makes the smart pull over blouse and the turn back jacket, revers.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Please tell me how to bleach freckles. I have a good crop of the red devil. And how can I prevent the appearance of more?" Another thing that troubles me is moles. I have several of them and I would like to remove them. —Mrs. H. S.

This is just the beginning of the summer, and if you must bleach your skin I would suggest that you wait until fall when you are sure you are through with outings and sports. If you try to bleach now they are apt to come right back again in a few weeks. You can limit the number most effectively by using a sun-proof cream before you apply your powder. This is a rather heavy foundation preparation that is supposed to screen out the ultra-violet rays that cause tanning—and freckling. Ask your doctor about removing the moles. Home treatment is seldom advisable.

QUESTION: "Please tell me how to make my hair hard. It is so soft and fine, I cannot keep it arranged. It will not hold a wave either.—Teresa."

Girls with soft, fine hair do find it a problem. Regular hot oil shampoos will do as much as anything to give your hair body. I would advise you to go to a permanent wave specialist, and see if you cannot have a good permanent. If properly handled, soft hair can sometimes be made quite lovely and manageable through a permanent wave. Have your hair cut rather short and shaped so that it looks neat with a minimum of care.

ANSWER: The mistress should assume this obligation.

Dishes for Today

Calories Set The Amount We Can Eat

By JUDITH WILSON

THE FAD for dieting is one that has caused increasing alarm among physicians during the last few years. While few persons are immune from excess poundage at one time or another, women and young girls must frequently suffer from the ill effects of drastic reducing measures.

Doctors tell us that normal fat deposits help to support the delicate internal organs and that a well-fed body is the best protection against tuberculosis which so often attacks young girls and boys. They also tell us that in nearly ninety per cent of the cases of overweight there is but one way to reduce—by cutting down on the number of calories of food you consume daily.

Every pound of excess weight represents nearly 4,000 calories of food that your body didn't need to keep itself in good condition. Your problem then is to eat fewer calories than your body requires so it will have to call on its store of fat for the difference. You should not try to lose more than two pounds a week.

DINNERS
Jellied Tomato-Pineapple
Appetizer
Broiled Lamb Chop
Bran Muffins
Small Baked Stuffed Potato
Spicy Beet Salad
Cup Custard Black Coffee

Cream of Celery Soup
(Unthickened)
Baked Mackerel
Riced Potatoes
Silvered String Beans
Lettuce Salad
Small Serving Ice Cream
Wafers

Foods vary greatly in their caloric value, but it is really incorrect to call one food fattening and say that another is not. You could grow fat on spinach if you ate enough of it. It is the total number of calories of food that you eat in a day that makes your figure shapely or fat and flabby.

The well-balanced reducing menu introduces a large variety of foods, but small servings of high-calorie foods and large servings of low-calorie foods like fresh fruits, greens and vegetables. You do not need to remember a lot of things about the number of calories in this or that food. Just remember that foods that are oily, starchy or sweet are rich in calories. These include sugar, candies, rich salad dressings, sauces and gravies, pies, cakes, pork or other fat meat, and fat fish like tuna. Chocolate, nuts, butter, cream, bread, fried fruits and thickened cream soups also belong to this group of foods of which you should eat sparingly.

Nearly all fresh vegetables and fruits (with the exception of bananas) belong to the low-calorie group. In this list belong eggs, skimmed milk or buttermilk, cottage cheese, clear soups, lean meats and seafood. These foods are rich in the proteins, minerals and vitamins that are essential to good health, and this group should be called upon frequently in planning.

As you will see by today's menus, the reducing diet needn't be limited or unattractive. You can plan any number of attractive menus. Here is a day of sample menus to guide you:

Breakfast: A large glass of orange juice, a poached egg, one slice crisp bacon, one slice of white or wholewheat toast with a half pat of butter, coffee with

QUESTION: "When dining, should long gloves be removed entirely or may they be turned back at the wrists?—P. L."

ANSWER: Gloves turned back at the wrist do not help a woman to look her best while eating. They do not lend beauty or grace to the hands or arms. Furthermore, turning back one's gloves is a lazy way for removing them, a careless custom on which polite society frowns.

QUESTION: "Who pays the doctor bill when a servant is ill? —Mrs. G. H."

ANSWER: The mistress should assume this obligation.

MODERN WOMEN

A Man Takes Up the Cudgels for the Much-Maligned "Twenty-nine"

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

IT IS NOT to be wondered at that women mistrust being tried by a jury composed of women. They are merciless toward their own sex. The comments received from women on the plight of Twenty-nine have been harsh and unrelenting, but now a man reader rushes to her defense and turns the battery of his scorn on the husband for being such "a crab" and a kill-joy.

You and Your Child

Prompting Makes a Child Decisive

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

IT LIKES to get something very special," six-year old Tommy said as he walked on ahead of his father into the ice-cream parlor and took a seat at a table.

Dad sat down beside him and studied the menu. "Do you know what you want?" the youngster repeated. "I'll have raspberry!" The last word was spoken with great emphasis and deep feeling. "Raspberry" dad called after the attendant, who had reached the counter by now. In a few minutes a ball of orange ice was set before Tommy. He dug his spoon in and was just about to lift it to his mouth, when dad said, "That's orange. You ordered raspberry." "I'm sorry," the attendant apologized. "I'll change it, if you like."

The child appeared disturbed. He already had the orange. The raspberry was something yet to come. He could not quite figure out what he was expected to do about it.

Dad could have said, "Let it go this time." Instead he asked coolly, "Wouldn't you rather have what you ordered? Raspberry?" "Yes, I'll have raspberry," was Tommy's confident reply. Such prompting helps a child develop decision.

milk of just a dash of cream—no sugar. Lunch: Chicken broth, two crackers, tomato and cottage cheese salad, gelatin dessert, one sweet wafer and a glass of skimmed milk or buttermilk. Dinner: Small steak with onions, spinach croquette, small roll or slice of bread with one pat butter, mixed vegetable salad with vinegar or small amount French dressing, small slice angel cake, coffee or tea.

The advantage of such a well-balanced diet is that the cook needn't prepare two sets of menus or cook special food.

QUESTION: "When dining, should long gloves be removed entirely or may they be turned back at the wrists?—P. L."

ANSWER: Gloves turned back at the wrist do not help a woman to look her best while eating. They do not lend beauty or grace to the hands or arms. Furthermore, turning back one's gloves is a lazy way for removing them, a careless custom on which polite society frowns.

QUESTION: "Who pays the doctor bill when a servant is ill? —Mrs. G. H."

ANSWER: The mistress should assume this obligation.

"Dear Mrs. Martin: May a mere man make a few remarks in our column for women? I am anxious to pay my respects to the husband of 'Twenty-nine' the poor little girl who wrote you that this said husband is often in a way on business, and objects to her going out and having perfectly harmless good times with the unmarried brother of one of her woman friends."

"You unquestionably gave Twenty-nine the correct advice. She must, as you told her, watch her step, to avoid gossip; and her husband being such a crab, the only sure way for her to safeguard her marriage is to stop seeing this other man alone. But why do they marry their wives in the first place? I'm only sorry that the wives of these jealous, suspicious twits and twerps don't make fools of their husbands, a great deal oftener than they do. Now that that's off the chest, I feel better!—Only a Man."

Would that all husbands were as tolerant of their wives' frivolities and so unselfish about their pleasures. Yet were such the case, there would unquestionably be women who would misuse their privileges, and by so doing make things the tougher for the wives who believe in and practice fair play.

That's the worst of it, the innocent usually have to suffer with the guilty.

Perfect Trust Needed

Perfect trust should exist between husband and wife, but let's be truthful enough to admit that it is not the usual attitude. Too many over-confident wives have come a-cropper, and too many trusting husbands have been betrayed not to have some misgivings creep into the situation.

A husband should, of course, trust his wife, but he isn't very intelligent if he does not realize that she has human failings. There are extremely attractive men in the world and if one should concentrate on her husband must not expect her to be immune to his charms. Too though she may not succumb to them.

There is danger in the smug satisfied man, or woman either, who feels that his or her mate is deaf, dumb and blind to the charms and blandishments of another.

There are many wives, maybe they are the so called old-fashioned ones, who would feel hurt at the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival. His broad-minded views might be misconstrued as indifference. After all, the male animal is predatory.

Doubtless there are men with no jealousy in their makeups, but even such men strongly desire to keep their wives from being the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival.

There is danger in the smug satisfied man, or woman either, who feels that his or her mate is deaf, dumb and blind to the charms and blandishments of another.

There are many wives, maybe they are the so called old-fashioned ones, who would feel hurt at the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival. His broad-minded views might be misconstrued as indifference. After all, the male animal is predatory.

Doubtless there are men with no jealousy in their makeups, but even such men strongly desire to keep their wives from being the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival.

There is danger in the smug satisfied man, or woman either, who feels that his or her mate is deaf, dumb and blind to the charms and blandishments of another.

There are many wives, maybe they are the so called old-fashioned ones, who would feel hurt at the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival. His broad-minded views might be misconstrued as indifference. After all, the male animal is predatory.

Doubtless there are men with no jealousy in their makeups, but even such men strongly desire to keep their wives from being the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival.

There is danger in the smug satisfied man, or woman either, who feels that his or her mate is deaf, dumb and blind to the charms and blandishments of another.

There are many wives, maybe they are the so called old-fashioned ones, who would feel hurt at the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival. His broad-minded views might be misconstrued as indifference. After all, the male animal is predatory.

Doubtless there are men with no jealousy in their makeups, but even such men strongly desire to keep their wives from being the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival.

There is danger in the smug satisfied man, or woman either, who feels that his or her mate is deaf, dumb and blind to the charms and blandishments of another.

There are many wives, maybe they are the so called old-fashioned ones, who would feel hurt at the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival. His broad-minded views might be misconstrued as indifference. After all, the male animal is predatory.

Doubtless there are men with no jealousy in their makeups, but even such men strongly desire to keep their wives from being the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival.

There is danger in the smug satisfied man, or woman either, who feels that his or her mate is deaf, dumb and blind to the charms and blandishments of another.

There are many wives, maybe they are the so called old-fashioned ones, who would feel hurt at the indifference of their husbands to the attentions of a rival. His broad-minded views might be misconstrued as indifference. After all, the male animal is predatory.

WEDDING PRESENT SUGGESTION

This tea and coffee service is done in dull-finish silver, while the style tends toward the Colonial. It would make any bride happy.

SUNDAY MO
REC
Publ
and
Record-H
2201 Macdonald
G. E. MILNE
GROVER E.
OFFICIAL
SU
ONE MONTH
ONE YEAR
Entered
S
Lodge and M
KNIGHTS OF P
mond Lodge, No
Wednesday nig
hall, Fifth St.
Visitors always
W. C. RIC
F. G. BL
Pt. RICHMOND
F. O. E. meets at 8 p. m. in 267 Fifth St.
Worthy Presid
350, Richmond
2455, W. M.
Phone 1085, D
ner, Phys., 90
Phone 78-W
CLEANERS
CLEANING—pres
repairing. All
Phone 1085, D
1116 Macdonald
SC
SN
WANT
TO GET
INT
TH
WIL
WOP
MARY M
WE
MAY
TO A
FRITZI
OK
I W
LOOY D
LO
COL
WILM
IS V
TH
FAM
WHI
PAR
TAK
ML
NEE
RE
CUT

89 REPORTED AS MISSING IN DISASTER

(Continued from Page 1)
Oxford, 4; Trenton, 2; Benkelman, 12; Parks, 31; Miller, 1, and Alina, 3.

Communication lines were so badly disrupted that the exact number of dead may not be known for many hours.

MUCH CONFUSION
There was great confusion in the flood area and some now listed as missing may have reached points of safety and been unable to inform frantic relatives who believed them dead.

So rapid was the rise of the river and so swift was the current that scores were trapped and left clinging to roof tops and trees.

HOUSES DESTROYED
Houses were swept down stream telephone and strong steel bridges were wrecked from their foundations.

The damage to property and growing crops by the dual destruction of the flood and the tornado was expected to run into many millions of dollars.

National Guard companies were hurried into the stricken area to take charge of the situation. They were aided in the work of rescue by members of the American Legion, Red Cross, and Chamber of Commerce units.

PLANES FLY
Airlanes flew low over the valley, directing parties in boats in reaching those marooned on house-tops and in trees.

Lieut. Herman Hattson, commanding National Guardsmen who went to Oxford, sent out an appeal for a motor launch or a seaplane to speed the rescue work.

He reported scores trapped on house-tops that might be washed away at any moment. A motor boat was sent from Kearney, but it could make no progress against the rushing current of the river.

LIGHTS OUT
The work of removing marooned persons was pushed with all possible haste throughout the day and until darkness forced a suspension of activities.

Failure of power plants throughout the length of the valley added to the problem of the rescue workers.

One man died and two others were believed to have perished in desperate attempts to rescue those trapped by the water at Oxford.

Sea Scout Lockers Robbed By Burglar

The Sea Scout locker room at the foot of Eighth street, was ransacked by burglars on Friday night but nothing of any value was taken, according to reports made to police yesterday by H. W. Lyons, captain of the local Sea Scout ship.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN
Please take notice that I, James McFarland, convicted and sentenced to state prison by the Superior Court of Contra Costa on the 12th day of May 1930, for the crime of larceny, do hereby apply to the Honorable Court of California, for a pardon.

J. A. McFARLAND.
Publish May 16 to June 16, 1935.

Pay Cash
FOR THAT NEW CAR
Automobile Finance Department
Special rates on new Fords
Plymouths... Chevrolets
MECHANICS BANK
RICHMOND

THE BEAUTIFUL WAY
Neither winter storms nor summer heat can effect the tranquility and serenity of Sunset Mausoleum

PUIM BROS. AUTOMOTIVE SERVICE
CITY HALL GARAGE
2325 Macdonald Ave.
Phone Rich. 364
All Work Guaranteed

Home of Kidnaped Boy, Victim

LEFT BIG white spacious, but hardly pretentious home of Mr. and Mrs. John Phillip Weyerhaeuser and their kidnaped son, George. The house sets on a promontory and overlooks Puget Sound. Right George Weyerhaeuser, 9 year old son of Mr. John Phillip Weyerhaeuser wealthy Tacoma, Washington lumber, magnate.

-a word in edgewise; wise and otherwise

By L. M. WISE

(Continued from Page 1)

sure, with due regard to the rights of everyone. In the meantime if the President will call on the professors and thus remove the fear engendered by their tinkering with our laws, we should soon see some signs of recovery.

THEY'RE FUNNY THAT WAY

Tip and think the proposal for annual sessions of the legislature was snubbed in the Assembly when that body emphatically rejected a negative to the constitutional amendment sponsored by Assemblyman James J. Boyle of Los Angeles county.

Isn't it rather peculiar, by the same token, that all of these fantastic schemes seem to originate in that part of the State?

Boyle would have had the legislature adopt the budget and pass revenue and emergency legislation at the first session. Bills also would be introduced but not acted upon until the second session, held a year later.

The author declared that the legislative methods were of the horse and buggy era, a contention with which I can agree. They are cumbersome and archaic but his plan did not abate or mitigate the evil. I have watched the cumbersome and unwieldy body for the past two months and I believe I have some ideas on the subject which would redound to the public good and the dispatch of legislative business. Some day I am going to get mad and tell the people about them through this column or in some public forum, and if they should read they can send me to the legislature or tell me to go some other place the climate of which is not noted for its coolness.

Mencken Wife, Famous Writer Taken By Death

BALTIMORE, Md., June 1.—(UP)—Mrs. Henry L. Mencken, 37, wife of the writer and critic, died last night after a year's illness.

Mrs. Mencken, before her marriage in 1920, was Sara Powell Haardt. She was a well-known writer, though not as famous as her husband. She had completed one full-length novel, "The Making of a Lady," and was working on another.

Firebug Sent To Reformatory

MARTINEZ, June 1.—"I wanted to create a little excitement." This explanation was given today by Albert Allen Drefs, 16, who set fires at Brentwood on May 22 which destroyed the Brentwood Lumber Company plant at a loss of $200,000. Drefs appeared before Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston and was committed to the Preston school at Jone, where he must remain until he is 21 years of age. The youth had been facing criminal charges of arson, since it was believed he was over 18 years of age. Later it was discovered he was but sixteen years of age.

BILLS USED FOR RANSOM ARE MARKED

(Continued from page 1)

Official confirmation that the ransom was paid came from the boy's family late this afternoon while Federal agents and police started the round-up which they hope will end in capture and perhaps hanging of the kidnapers.

CAR FOUND
The kidnap car was found, abandoned in Seattle. At least one man with a previous record of having attempted a kidnaping, had been taken into custody, and roads for 500 miles in all directions were patrolled by troopers armed with Thompson guns.

Shortly after all officials had conferred with the family, George, smiling and almost glistening in shiny clean clothes, was led out on the simple lawn and posed for news-reel and cameramen.

LAD POSES
The lad laughed, waved at the crowd of newsmen, posed willingly, turned this way and that, but there was no conversation. The newsmen were warned when they were called to the home that there would be no questions asked nor answered.

Mr. and Mrs. Weyerhaeuser issued a brief statement confirming that they had paid the ransom asked by the "Eskels" and his associates. They said the boy was safe and healthy.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

KIDNAP CAR
The car found in Seattle was a black Pontiac sedan. Officers believe it definitely is the car in which George was transported in a trunk from the kidnapers' hide-out to the family home.

However, there was little belief that the kidnapers have yet fled the immediate vicinity of Puget Sound. Roads to the east and south were guarded before it is believed they had time to leave the country, and the hunt centered tonight to points within 100 miles of Tacoma.

VITAL STORY
The nine-year-old boy, victim of one of the costliest ransom plots on record, was returned home with the aid of a farmer, John Bonitas. He told Federal agents a vague but vitally important story of the men who abducted him and transported him from one hide-out to another in a big trunk on the rear of an automobile.

The Federal agents' search whirled into action the moment word was received of the boy's safety, and it was doubly intense because officials feared a resurgence of kidnapings unless they quickly wiped out the gang. They concentrated on search for the notorious Karpis outlaw gang, to

End Of Strike In Steel Mill Near

CANTON, O., June 1.—(UP) Hope for termination of the labor controversy, which has resulted in more than 50 casualties in striking near two steel plants here, was seen tonight when workers voted to accept a plan to return to work.

James A. R. Treadwell announced that the result of the city-wide voted election showed that 57 per cent of the workers decided to return to their jobs as against 164 who voted to continue the strike.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

KIDNAP CAR
The car found in Seattle was a black Pontiac sedan. Officers believe it definitely is the car in which George was transported in a trunk from the kidnapers' hide-out to the family home.

However, there was little belief that the kidnapers have yet fled the immediate vicinity of Puget Sound. Roads to the east and south were guarded before it is believed they had time to leave the country, and the hunt centered tonight to points within 100 miles of Tacoma.

VITAL STORY
The nine-year-old boy, victim of one of the costliest ransom plots on record, was returned home with the aid of a farmer, John Bonitas. He told Federal agents a vague but vitally important story of the men who abducted him and transported him from one hide-out to another in a big trunk on the rear of an automobile.

The Federal agents' search whirled into action the moment word was received of the boy's safety, and it was doubly intense because officials feared a resurgence of kidnapings unless they quickly wiped out the gang. They concentrated on search for the notorious Karpis outlaw gang, to which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

KIDNAP CAR
The car found in Seattle was a black Pontiac sedan. Officers believe it definitely is the car in which George was transported in a trunk from the kidnapers' hide-out to the family home.

However, there was little belief that the kidnapers have yet fled the immediate vicinity of Puget Sound. Roads to the east and south were guarded before it is believed they had time to leave the country, and the hunt centered tonight to points within 100 miles of Tacoma.

VITAL STORY
The nine-year-old boy, victim of one of the costliest ransom plots on record, was returned home with the aid of a farmer, John Bonitas. He told Federal agents a vague but vitally important story of the men who abducted him and transported him from one hide-out to another in a big trunk on the rear of an automobile.

The Federal agents' search whirled into action the moment word was received of the boy's safety, and it was doubly intense because officials feared a resurgence of kidnapings unless they quickly wiped out the gang. They concentrated on search for the notorious Karpis outlaw gang, to which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

Interest Rate Slash Planned By L. A. Banks

LOS ANGELES, June 1.—(UP) L. A. Banks, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, announced today that he planned to slash interest rates on July 1.

The California Bank Association announced yesterday that it would slash rates on July 1 from 2 1/2 to 2 percent on all accounts up to $50,000 and to 1 1/2 percent on amounts over.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

KIDNAP CAR
The car found in Seattle was a black Pontiac sedan. Officers believe it definitely is the car in which George was transported in a trunk from the kidnapers' hide-out to the family home.

However, there was little belief that the kidnapers have yet fled the immediate vicinity of Puget Sound. Roads to the east and south were guarded before it is believed they had time to leave the country, and the hunt centered tonight to points within 100 miles of Tacoma.

VITAL STORY
The nine-year-old boy, victim of one of the costliest ransom plots on record, was returned home with the aid of a farmer, John Bonitas. He told Federal agents a vague but vitally important story of the men who abducted him and transported him from one hide-out to another in a big trunk on the rear of an automobile.

The Federal agents' search whirled into action the moment word was received of the boy's safety, and it was doubly intense because officials feared a resurgence of kidnapings unless they quickly wiped out the gang. They concentrated on search for the notorious Karpis outlaw gang, to which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

KIDNAP CAR
The car found in Seattle was a black Pontiac sedan. Officers believe it definitely is the car in which George was transported in a trunk from the kidnapers' hide-out to the family home.

However, there was little belief that the kidnapers have yet fled the immediate vicinity of Puget Sound. Roads to the east and south were guarded before it is believed they had time to leave the country, and the hunt centered tonight to points within 100 miles of Tacoma.

VITAL STORY
The nine-year-old boy, victim of one of the costliest ransom plots on record, was returned home with the aid of a farmer, John Bonitas. He told Federal agents a vague but vitally important story of the men who abducted him and transported him from one hide-out to another in a big trunk on the rear of an automobile.

The Federal agents' search whirled into action the moment word was received of the boy's safety, and it was doubly intense because officials feared a resurgence of kidnapings unless they quickly wiped out the gang. They concentrated on search for the notorious Karpis outlaw gang, to which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

Two Dead, Two Are Dying In Machine Crash

FAIRFIELD, June 1.—(UP) Two men were dead and two were dying here today as the result of a train and automobile accident.

The body of W. T. Lundy, 38, of Portland, was found beneath the Southern Pacific tracks, near the nearby Mike Seapin, Delano, was unconscious. Police said he had been hit by another train.

J. W. Anderson, Grapevine, was killed and Roy Drake received a fractured skull when their automobile was struck by a tree.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

KIDNAP CAR
The car found in Seattle was a black Pontiac sedan. Officers believe it definitely is the car in which George was transported in a trunk from the kidnapers' hide-out to the family home.

However, there was little belief that the kidnapers have yet fled the immediate vicinity of Puget Sound. Roads to the east and south were guarded before it is believed they had time to leave the country, and the hunt centered tonight to points within 100 miles of Tacoma.

VITAL STORY
The nine-year-old boy, victim of one of the costliest ransom plots on record, was returned home with the aid of a farmer, John Bonitas. He told Federal agents a vague but vitally important story of the men who abducted him and transported him from one hide-out to another in a big trunk on the rear of an automobile.

The Federal agents' search whirled into action the moment word was received of the boy's safety, and it was doubly intense because officials feared a resurgence of kidnapings unless they quickly wiped out the gang. They concentrated on search for the notorious Karpis outlaw gang, to which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.

That the men knew the wealth and position of the Weyerhaeuser family and that the money could be paid in cash.

KIDNAP CAR
The car found in Seattle was a black Pontiac sedan. Officers believe it definitely is the car in which George was transported in a trunk from the kidnapers' hide-out to the family home.

However, there was little belief that the kidnapers have yet fled the immediate vicinity of Puget Sound. Roads to the east and south were guarded before it is believed they had time to leave the country, and the hunt centered tonight to points within 100 miles of Tacoma.

VITAL STORY
The nine-year-old boy, victim of one of the costliest ransom plots on record, was returned home with the aid of a farmer, John Bonitas. He told Federal agents a vague but vitally important story of the men who abducted him and transported him from one hide-out to another in a big trunk on the rear of an automobile.

The Federal agents' search whirled into action the moment word was received of the boy's safety, and it was doubly intense because officials feared a resurgence of kidnapings unless they quickly wiped out the gang. They concentrated on search for the notorious Karpis outlaw gang, to which the abduction was had, it was believed the money split after receiving from the Weyerhaeuser family the $200,000 ransom.

ON CHIEF
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 1.—(UP) A company of 100 men, headed by Chief of Police, returned to the city of Annapolis today for a week and a half on the city's strike. They were returned from a hospital and went directly to the Annapolis, Md. will return tomorrow night.

IN GANG
From the way told Federal agents by George and the farmer who brought him to Tacoma in an old model T Ford, officials learned that six men were in the gang of kidnapers. They were mostly but George believed he can recognize several of them.

That they called one another Harry, Albert or Alvin, the Harry and Alvin being the names of the kidnapers, Alvin possibly could have been Karpis, authorities believed.

HAD HIDE-OUTS
That they had several hide-outs, moving from one to another. That they had at least two automobiles, one a brown Buick, the other a grey Hudson sedan.

That the kidnapers mentioned Alvin, which might have been near one of the hide-outs. Another thing he was told that he was in Oregon. He believed he was near a large river at the chief hide-out.